Pu Dessem Ribilac Taht Fo T A Morf Etib a Fi Desirphus Eb Tahndloua Messages 98 I want to expand upon the thought about getting bitten on purpose and the motivation behind it. Period. As far as the mentioning of someone letting centipedes bite them to see the effects, i think i seen that a long time ago, and they were doing it for documenting. I would imagine there is someone out there that does let tarantulas bite them, just to document the effects, but i sure wouldnt recommend it. A pinch of salt, my friend Joined Jan 18, 2011 Messages 549 Wikipets is bad. Joined Jun 11, 2012 Messages 45 doesn't sound like a party i would want to attend. Do we have records of it? Why would someone want to be bitten before deciding what to keep? Joined Sep 20, 2009 Messages 1,355 Why did you want to taste tarantula venom? I will try to dig it up, but honestly, it isnt that important to me:sarcasm: Cant fix stupid Joined Feb 18, 2012 Messages 163 I'm sure someone would be willing to do the same with some tarantulas. I am pretty confident that I will never suffer a bite. Also, getting bitten is very uncommon. My first Tarantula (B. I doubt the hallucinations were pleasant and certainly the side effects of the bite wouldn't be. I'm willing to bet there is SOMEONE on this board that will be letting their king baboon bite them now. The other part of my question is has anyone ever tried to get bitten on purpose for hallucinations? I doubt it. This thread is confusing me. Last edited: Jun 18, 2012 Joined Mar 26, 2012 Messages 31 I've never heard of any tarantula causing hallucinations, although I will be following up on this. Ive seen some dumb stuff posted on them in the past. surprisingly there is. I once saw one idiot secretly mix illegal drugs into the drink of another idiot. albo) did bite me within first week of keeping it. hallucinations arent all that, and are definitely not worth getting bit by a pissed off baboon Joined Oct 1, 2010 Messages 4,403 Im sure the bite, hallucinations, and itchiness are not all you will receive. There are much simpler and much less painful ways of doing both those things. at least id LIKE to doubt it lol.. or there is NOTHING at all.. Joined Jan 17, 2011 Messages 2,466 I'm sure someone would be willing to do the same with some tarantulas. Does a venomous snake keeper let it bite them beforehand, just to see what it's like? Whether the hallucination truly occured or not, it cannot be clear that it was caused by tarantula venom. Some people get tagged and notice very little, even from the more venomous species, while some people can potentially be hospitalized by the same species. or the member, but i was recently diggin around the bite reports, and saw somebody who was purposely being bit by the f because there was no readily available bite reports anywhere.. Joined Sep 30, 2010 Messages 759 Spiders usually eat larger amounts post-moult until they are full, this is called power feeding You can never overfeed a tarantula It is important to note that ceramic heaters and lamps will primarily heat the air and in turn raise humidity Thats what I think of Wikipets... I could imagine a person getting bitten for sole purpose of the hospital visit, associated drugs, and/or time off work. Joined Jan 17, 2011 Messages 2,466 i generally steer clear of wiki pets... Toads, tree frogs and fire salamanders are some of those. Joined Oct 28, 2010 Messages 141 I'm sure some somewhere, sometime, has been stupid enough to try this. Joined Apr 17, 2012 Messages 690 If you want hallucinations, you should probably go to amphibian-oriented forum. If the second idiot would have attempted a T feeding afterwards, and got tagged, I understand how he could draw so simple a conclusion as to blame the tarantula. The taste is/was hard to describe, I did feel a little tingle in my mouth, I wondered to myself would the taste of this bite be at all similar to tasting poisonous blow/puffer fish (I never tasted blow fish). fish).
